Voting Very Heavy.

More than 1,000 votes were cast the first day, 3,500 the second, and on the third day these figures were multiplied by five or six.

In the vote of the two first days, Phil Jolly, the popular young proprietor of Stratton's Hotel, led in the race. But he third day's poll brings a new name to the front, that of President Herman Raub, of the Consumers' Brewing Comany, and shoves several candidates into view and in dangerous proximity

There are others, too, and some robust fellows are preparing to huri an avalanche of votes for candidates who have not seemed to be in the running. Among these is ex-Sheriff Buttling, of Brooklyn, who, despite his protest that the honor ought 10 go to some other number of the Evening World ballots by the same friends' who elected him Sheriff of Kings County when there was a nominal majority of 20,000 for the opposing party in the county.
